Individual and Collective Nurse Advocacy and the Role of the School Nurse presented by Susan Swart MS, RN, CAE, Executive Director ANA, Illinois

Description: School Nurses bring a unique perspective to health care policy development because of their educational training and experiential background. This perspective affords school nurses a unique opportunity to lend their expertise in influencing health policy at all levels of government. Learning how to use that influence to identify issues strategically and work with decision makers both individually and collectively will be the focus of Director Swart's presentation. The role of professional nursing organizations as well as tools and steps that promote nurse advocacy will also be discussed, with an emphasis on how advocacy can advance nursing's presence, role, and influence in the development of health care policy decisions.
